Two hundred years of neutrality helped Sweden avoid direct military conflict in two world wars and be known as a peace-making mediator globally. As a result of recent world events, with Sweden (and Finland) joining NATO, it's clear the security situation in the Baltic Sea has changed significantly for all the Nordic countries.

The Ambassador will be speaking about those changes - what it means for Sweden, its Nordic neighbours, for NATO, and for our overall security.

H.E. Signe Burgstaller
Ambassador of Sweden
